

It's a Partnership

We all care about important causes and want to support efforts to make the world a better place. Especially when it comes to saving the lives of young children like Jayden in Kenya who has suffered from diarrhea almost every day of his life. Why, because the water Jayden drinks is dirty and filled with bacteria that makes him sick.

Supporting a good cause is good business, it reflects well in your customer's eyes and the communities you serve. However, random donations to causes and groups that don't have any affiliation with your business is good philanthropy but offers little direct benefit to your business.

At Connect for Water, we want to bring as much value to you as you do to us. If your company is in anyway associated with water, health or improving the quality of people's lives, we need your support in our efforts to improve access to water treatment products for millions of people around the world. In return, Connect for Water will help you share with your customers and the community you serve the wonderful impact your support is having on improving lives around the world.

- Your company will get a custom webpage on our website highlighting your values, mission, and goals in support of this effort to improve access to water treatment solutions around the world.
- Regular updates including stories, reports, and data from the field showing how your support is impacting and benefiting people around the world.
- Logo placement as a sponsor and supporter in our marketing materials and campaigns.
- And, materials and resources to help your sales and marketing teams bring greater value and a competitive edge to your offerings as a socially responsible and caring business.

Support Connect for Water and begin making a real difference in the lives of people around the world, in addition to building the value of your brand and competitive advantage.
